Brooks, master of the steamer Fairfax, which collided with the tanker Pinta off the Massachusetts coast June 10 with the loss of 49 lives.

D. N. Hoover, inspector-general of the United States Coast Guard, in an announcement today of the proceedings against the captain, recommended that Secretary of Commerce Lamont call for a full investigation of the cause of the collision.

The Fairfax, a Merchants and Miners line operating coastwise, was found to have collided with the Pinta about six miles off Scituate. The Pinta was a tank carrier owned by the Lake Tankers Corp. of Wilmington.

BLACK JACK BLOWS LED TO HER DEATH

Police Seek Large Collection of Jewels Owned by Victim

Her head beaten in, Mrs. Edith Wright Thompson, 61, well-known Boston store detective, was found dead today in the sun porch in the rear of her apartment in Vine st., Saugus.

The body, which apparently had lain for two days, was discovered by Chief of Police Mansfield of Saugus who forced his way in after being called by suspicious neighbors.

Search was being made for a large collection of jewelry, valued at many thousands of dollars, and including a three stone diamond brooch worth $9000, which Mrs. Thompson was known to possess.

For two days the automobile of the slain woman had stood in the yard before the garage, the windows open, attracting the attention of neighbors.

NOTIFIED CHIEF
Mrs. Nettie Balcer of 85 Vine st., notified Chief Mansfield and he broke into the second floor apartment.

The woman's body was on the floor of the sun porch in the rear of the house, and death apparently had been caused by blows on the head.

Associate Medical Examiner Dr. Loring Grimes was notified and arrived within a short time, followed by State Detective William Murray from the office of Dist. Atty. Clark of Essex County.

State Detective Murray said Mrs. Thompson was killed with a black jack.

It was learned that Mrs. Thompson, whose married name was Wright, had been living alone for a week, a brother, William, with whom she had made her home, being away on a visit.

MANY YEARS IN HUB STORES
Another brother, Joseph, residing with his wife, a French wife, Mrs. Thompson, a third lives in Braintree, a brother, William, with whom she had made her home, being away on a visit.

For some time past the slain woman has been seeking recovery of her health, preparatory to opening a private detective agency in Syracuse.

For more than 25 years she was employed as a "shop detective" by Boston department stores, serving her company for the last some eight years ago.

What's in Fashion
She was a well-known figure in the city for a time, returning to work in Worcester, Albany and Syracuse.

She was also, when seen in the city, by an old acquaintance, Mrs. Thompson said she intended to return to Syracuse to open her own detective agency.

As the first of his Boston stock brokers appeared at the State House for questioning today, it was announced at Atty. Gen. Joseph E. Warner's office that a new inquiry had been opened into sales methods used in promoting the stock issue of the Holland Farm East Tea, Coffee and Cocoa corporation.

The numerous complaints received through the Boston Evening American Stock Fraud Bureau against salesmen of the Holland stock caused the Attorney-General to focus his official inquiry on this case.

The complaints were turned over to the Attorney-General's office.

there and be asked on if I had a good time. I had only been out a little while.

"I talk to an argument which really had been going on for several days, and my husband paced the floor for an hour or two, as if all night long."

SHOT AFTER SHOT

"When we went to bed the argument flared up all over again. He upbraided me about going out without him."

"Finally he got up and struck me and in another instant he seized his revolver from the drawer of the little table between the twin beds."

"When I saw him open the drawer I leaped upon him and ran screaming for help through one room after another and into the corridor. He fired again and again and I was struck just as I reached the corridor."

Mrs. Anthony, although her name is still on the danger list, will recover, according to hospital surgeons.

SAW TWO DOCTORS

Yesterday Anthony consulted two doctors, one a medical therapist, and in the late afternoon from his office at 35 Chestnut st., headquarters of a concern which employed him as a concert salesman.

Anthony's wife said that he would be home at the regular hour.

Occupants of the apartment house saw him outside at 9:30. Shortly afterwards sounds of quarrelling were heard from his apartment. This was renewed at intervals until after midnight when five shots rang out.

After seeing his revolver, Anthony had chased his wife through the suite of rooms, firing shot after shot. She escaped unhurt but by three of them, but one bullet struck her in the back as she reached the hall door.

Anthony then turned to the bathroom and put a bullet in his brain. Neighbors, unable to get into the house, called the police and a trance was gained by use of a ladder.

DOG ON GUARD

"When Sergt. James Tonn and Patrolmen McInerney and Cronin of the Brookline police entered the bedroom, Preszy, an alderman, was standing guard over his master's body. They captured the dog and locked it in another room and gave it aid to the wounded wife, who was screaming:

"He shot me, he shot me!"

X-rays were taken of her back and surgeons said she would probe for the bullet later today.

Mrs. Anthony's sister, Brookline, and Anthony's father spent several hours at the bedside.

Franco-Italian War Imminent—Gerard

New York, July 17 (AP)—German ambassador to Germany, under President Wilson, expressed the belief today upon his return from France that a new war is brewing, between Italy and France.

"It is imminent," he said. "It is in the air."

He talked to no diplomats on his visit, he said. Asked if France were the aggressor, he answered:

"I should not say so. She has too much to remember of the last war. I think France fears it."

Brooklyn, July 17—As 3000 cheered, the Brooklyn "flagpole circus" was brought to a close last night when Ralph D'Astino descended from his perch after setting a record of 34 days and 24 hours.

The descent was dramatic. Promptly at 8 o'clock, with an overflow crowd assembled, Charles D'Astino, brother of Ralph and flagman, blew one long shrill blast on a whistle and Ralph began to come down.

He made the descent hand over hand, by rope, slowly. To give photographers a chance to "shoot" him. When he struck the ground he made a deep bow, then swayed

His Endurance Record Is Full of Breaks

Brooklyn, July 17—Arthur Johnson, who is 14, is having no luck at all in his efforts to be a real champion of something or other.

On Tuesday he started out to make a long record as a tree sitter, but the limb of a crab apple tree at his home in Lawa st., broke under his weight.

Nothing dramatic, he started out yesterday at 8 a. m., with Charles Wollen, 13, of Centre st., as his partner, to break the endurance swinging record.

At 8:59 last night the rope broke, depositing the swinger summarily on terra firma. He had broken the old record of 11 hours, 29 minutes, but he was disgraced because he could not keep on.

BRITISH TROOPS TO QUEL WAR IN EGYPT

Men and Warships Will Protect Foreigners and Warn the Native Government

London, July 17 (AP)—Dispatch of two British battleships to Alexandria, Egypt, with a united complement of more than 2000 men was construed here today as implying intervention in Egyptian affairs, but rather as a step due to Great Britain's ultimate responsibility for lives and property of foreigners.

This responsibility was reserved under the agreement of 1922, which recognized Egyptian independence.

The ships presumably will remain at Alexandria until the menace caused by internal troubles, which resulted Tuesday in rioting, with death of 14 persons, removed. While there the ships will be ready to land men to insure the safety of foreigners.

It was said today presence of the ships would be a material reminder to the Egyptian government of Britain's warning, which Prime Minister MacDonald announced had been given through Percy Lavie, British high commissioner in Egypt, that Egypt will be held responsible if foreign lives and interests are endangered, and would remind the Egyptian regime that they might be used forcibly to emphasize that warning if it is disregarded.

Stanbul, Turkey, July 17 (AP)—One Turkish aviator, brought down by invading Kurds on Mt. Ararat, has suffered a terrible fate at the hands of the infuriated tribesmen for the depredations of his brother aviators.

While other planes dropped bombs around them, the Kurds snatched the aviator from a plane they had shot down with machine guns and gouged out his eyes. Other Kurds tore his body to shreds.

Facing a heavy fire from the machine guns of the Kurds, the bombing planes flew to a height of 20,000 feet and swooped downward, dropping tons of bombs.

GIRLS ALL THRILLED

The radio crooner will speak about his work and Monday will be "Rudy Vallees Day," marked by a military parade in his honor, a search by the Westbrook City Band, in which he used to play, and a banquet and ball at the hotel. But he will be given the keys to the town by the Westbrook Chamber of Commerce and Congressmen Carroll L. Boddy.

Building and "Welcome Home" signs decorate the buildings and every girl in town is wearing a badge with a picture of Rudy. Miss Ramona Cook, 16-year-old girl of 20—who will be the housewife at the Vallees home during Rudy's stay, will wait on Rudy at the banquet. But almost every other girl in town has a picture of Rudy.

POEM TO HIM

Tomorrow's homecoming will be Rudy's first real visit here since his graduation from Yale in 1927. Even a post laureate has been procured for the occasion. Mrs. Lillian Wallace Simmons, one of Rudy's ardent admirers, will write a poem, entitled "We're Proud, Rudy Vallees, of You."

With his parents, Rudy will be a luncheon guest Monday at the home of Mrs. Jacob Vail.

The parade will start at 8 p. m. Monday from the Vallees home and down Main st. It will include the Westbrook City Band, a band of 40, a naval detachment, a platoon of 100 from the Maine State Guard, and a platoon of 100 from the Maine State Guard.

$5000 Reward

The Boston Evening American will pay a reward of $5000 for information furnished FIRST and EXCLUSIVELY to this paper resulting in the capture of Oliver B. Garrett as a fugitive from justice.

All communications concerning such information should be addressed to the Garrett Reward Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., or telephone Liberty 4000. All communications and information received by this newspaper will be treated with strict confidence.

OLIVER B. GARRETT, Age 35, height 5 feet 10, 120 pounds, complexion brown, eyes and hair black, slightly wavy, hair combed back, usually wears a Leathers or Fawn suit with coat, sport sweater, walks jauntily.

TWO SOUGHT IN GARRETT CASE

On the 23rd day since Oliver B. Garrett, former liquor squad raider, defaulted, the search for him today was concentrated on a hunt for two underworld members now missing from the city.

It was learned that both recently exchanged their automobiles for new cars and they are believed to be in Pennsylvania.

It is understood federal authorities in Philadelphia are making a search for the men who are thought to have knowledge of the whereabouts of Garrett.

Garrett began the longest non-stop flight ever attempted.

The bad news came that the plane had crashed and next came the good news that the crew were all three safe.

Noise kills human beings, slowly but surely undermining health. And while it is killing them it makes them less efficient.

New York's city government proposed to kill noise in its new subway. Turnstiles are to be free of rattles and bangs, and tubes are to be soundproof.

If the city can accomplish this many shortcomings will be forgiven.

Every civilized city should take up the noise question, the howling horns of automobiles, the miserable devices attached to the exhaust, etc. And communities along railroad tracks should take up with their railroad managements the unnecessary horrible, screaming of locomotives.

ers, according to the figures of the last report to the bank commission, there are hundreds whose money is in the bank as an investment. The today notice will allow off a run by these depositors whose withdrawals would soon total figures so large as to wipe out liquid assets, it was said. With the 90 days to work in, officials of the bank believe the trouble will soon be alleviated.

POLICE LINE 'EM UP

After the announcement, State troopers under Sgt. George Smith and local police under Chief Thomas A. Dolan lined up the 350 depositors and nearly all filled in to take out their $100 each.

Meanwhile a reserve supply of cash, believed to be approximately $200,000, was rushed to the bank from the Worcester County National Bank.

On the first day of the run 162 accounts were closed out and $150,000 was withdrawn. Because of the long line of early arrivals bank officials feared that these figures would be exceeded today.

A shortage of at least $6000 in the bank's accounts was admitted by bank officials following a meeting attended last night by Bank Commissioner Roy Hovey.

It was said that at this time it could not be told whether the shortage was due to larceny or mismanagement.

At the meeting a committee was appointed to select a successor to Ernest L. Smith, who resigned as treasurer at request of the state banking department.

Bank Commissioner Hovey said there is absolutely no reason for excitement.

The bank commissioner declared all employees of the bank are bonded and that the bank will lose nothing through the $6000 shortage.

Meanwhile, bank officials were desirous of questioning Miss Ives relative to the bank run.

Apple Bran KILL HIT N. I.

Durham, N. H., July 16.—That New Hampshire growers will feel the effects of the ban on American apples from July 7 to Nov. 15, England's Scotch whisky was pointed out today by G. F. Fetter, superintendent of the New Hampshire experiment station.

While he admitted the fruit has never reported any large amount of New England apples to be crowded with apples previously reported by other sources.

The apple maggot is the reported cause of the embargo on all apples not grading "extra fancy" or "fancy" in boxes and "U. S. A. No. 1" or "U. S. No. 2" in barrels.

Control measures consist of spraying and picking up all drops from July 15 through September harvest, he says. In addition to removal of all drops, the culling down or top grafting, the culling being done, however, after the season's drops have been carefully picked up.

caught fire immediately and the blazing oil on the water contributed largely to the loss of life. Of the 48 dead, 16 were passengers on the Fairfax and the others were members of the crews of the vessels.

Being unskilled was another charge made against Captain Brooks. If he is convicted at the trial, his license as master is subject to revocation.

Mr. Hovey added there had been nothing in the investigation to indicate any laxness of federal inspection service as applied to the vessels.

In specifying the charge of recklessness, Captain Brooks specified that the liner's master had "failed to make the proper maneuver in sighting the motor vessel Pithia thereby causing a collision."

The final charge of negligence asserted that the liner's master had "neglected to have an efficient and diligent search made for possible vessels in the water" after the collision.

No time has been fixed for the trial board to sit, but under the usual custom it will convene, in all probability, at Boston.

Its members, who will be local inspectors of the federal service, will have authority in case their findings are adverse to the master to suspend completely his license or to remove it temporarily, but may make no findings involving fines or imprisonment.

NAME AUTO MAN IN BANK THEFT

Providence, July 17 (AP).—George Bush of the Bush Motor Company here was the man who forced Peter L. Simonini, National Bank of Commerce bookkeeper, to allow evidence amounting to $24,000, according to Simonini's confession and statements of bank examiners and investigators today. The sum involved represents the amount which the bank is believed to be short.

Bush died intestate in November, 1925, and his widow petitioned for administration on the estate. The property was estimated at $100,000, but was so involved with claims that an adjudicator was named by the probate court. Several claims were disallowed, and the claimants have carried their case to the superior court, where it is pending.

Simonini revealed that the unexpected visit of federal bank examiners prevented him from using the intricate system which for five years and through 10 examinations, he claims, he had kept the big shortage secret.

Hoover Orders 'Gag' on Naval Treaty Foes

Washington, July 17.—In the face of an administration move to impose a "gag rule" on the Senate, Senator Hiram W. Johnson (Republican) of California, leader of the opposition to the London naval treaty, today blocked an agreement for a vote on the pact next week.

Johnson dramatically announced he would "ask no quarter" from the treaty's friends and declared he would continue fighting the pact indefinitely. The Californian inspired the treaty foes by challenging the administration to impose a gag rule, which would gag the Senate by limiting each senator to a single hour's debate.

Senator James E. Watson (R) of Indiana, administration floor leader, immediately circulated a petition asking cloture.

The necessary 16 names were quickly enrolled. Watson had expressed confidence that the necessary two-thirds majority could be obtained to invoke the rule, although some treaty advocates are opposed to cloture.

"GAG" VOTE SATURDAY
If introduced today the petition automatically would be voted upon Saturday. If adopted, each Senator would be limited to one hour of debate on the treaty.

Watson asserted that treaty proponents had a clear majority to halt what he termed "time-killing" tactics.

Before the session convened, Senator Watson visited President Hoover and secured the executive's consent to impose cloture. The President's consent was required because of the wisdom of imposing gag rule in the consideration of a treaty involving the national defense.

This was the point raised by Johnson. He challenged the administration to gag senators in a debate over the national defense, and the strength of the American navy.

Johnson defiantly declared that he would not "replicate the limitation" to 16 minutes for each senator, beginning next Tuesday.

"I will not," replied each Senator.

"Will the senator agree to limit debate to 16 minutes for each senator, beginning next Tuesday?"

"I will not," replied each Senator.

With that, Watson said the Senate would be kept in session Saturday and that this would give the opposition four days to complete their arguments. He added that the proponents had no desire to shut debate as long as it was German, but said indications yesterday were that efforts were being made to "kill time."

Senator Robinson, Republican, Indiana, a treaty opponent, interrupted to deny time killing tactics had been used. He contended the Senate so far had been on the "kill" time.

"LEAD ON McADUFF!"

Watson replied that one senator spoke yesterday for the express purpose of killing time until another senator can return to the city. Robinson did not challenge this.

As Watson concluded, Johnson accepted the issue for cloture.

"I am going to ask," he said, "I ask no quarter from any source or under any circumstances."

"I know of no other way to get a cloture on a treaty that is to die. This great majority here can do just exactly as it pleases. I will protect what rights I have as best as I can."

"But your cloture!" The only time we use it is in some form of emergency. I make no agreement. I can go as best I can. Move on with a cloture or a treaty that deals with our national defense."

"I lay on McADUFF—then he who first cries blood, enough!"

The pontiff asked several questions about Boston, including its new population and the population of the archdiocese. ## $30,000 SPENT BY CROWE IN CAMPAIGN

Chicago, July 17 (AP)—Robert E. Crowe, former state attorney of Cook County, told the Senate campaign funds committee today he had spent about $30,000 of his own funds during the last Republican primary campaign in which he supported Ruth Hanna McCormick for the senatorial nomination.

Crowe said he used virtually all the funds to carry on the campaign for various county and state legislative offices, only incidentally mentioning Mrs. McCormick in a few minor bits of advertising.

AGAINST WORLD COURT

He said he had no association with her candidacy other than his voluntary endorsement of Mrs. McCormick. He explained that he favored her against Senator Charles S. Deneen because she opposed the world court.

Senator Nye, chairman of the inquiry, announced he would make known later in the day whether he would summon James Hamilton Lewis, Democratic senatorial nominee, to question him about his remark that "the Republican senatorial campaign cost $100,000 and it increasing appears." Mrs. McCormick used the most of it.

Mrs. McCormick was recalled and asked when and where she voted on election day.

"Of course you voted?" Senator Nye asked.

"I sure did," Mrs. McCormick replied, laughing. "At my home in Byron, Ill."

Nye asked her about the $100,000 which she received from the end of the primary campaign from Col. R. R. McCormick, her brother-in-law.

OTHER CONTRIBUTIONS

She said she had no other money and it was cashed by some one of her staff, the money being placed in a vault in her office where it was kept. She said she wanted to keep it separate from her own funds which she used in her campaign, and had not returned it to Col. McCormick since he told her to keep it for use in her fall campaign.

Mrs. McCormick said she had several similar contributions not used in the primary with which she would open an account for the fall campaign, against Lewis.

FATHER AND SON FACE CHAIR

Cedartown, Ga., July 17 (AP)—A father and his son today faced death in the electric chair for the slaying of three young men, who, investigators said, were "taken for a ride" in a one-horse wagon because they won heavily in a card game in which they were expected to lose.

A murder verdict, carrying the death penalty, was returned by a jury against William Hulse and his son, Fred, last night, less than a month after the bodies of Cliff Jones, Lige Harper and Ernest McCullough were found in an abandoned well near Rockmart, Ga. They were accused of the murder of Jones.

Describing the Hulseys as professional gamblers, the prosecution offered the theory that the slain men were shot in the back of the head while they were seated in a poker game at the Hulseys' place. They had been invited there, authorities said, for a drinking and gambling party.

No 'Slush' Worries Here

Gunmen Use Greek Gospel as Gangs' 'Oath Book'

Chicago, July 17 (AP)—The "oath bible" of the gangsters who once met in "Jim" Colosimo's famous cafe was revealed today as a 10th century Greek manuscript of Gospel readings. It was one part of the ritual equipment of the Cathedral of Argos, Greece.

The manuscript, now in the University of Chicago's collection, is a lectionary, or collection of the Gospel selections assigned to be read as part of the Greek Orthodox ritual on various Sundays and Holy Days.

Harold E. Willoughby, associate professor of the New Testament at the university, obtained the book recently from Michael Hliden, present proprietor of the Colosimo cafe, where "Big Jim" was assassinated in May, 1920.

"The owner divulged the information that the manuscript had been used as an 'oath book' by patrons of his restaurant," Willoughby said today. "This suggests that it may have figured strategically in the recent history of Chicago gangland."

Colosimo was a gangster leader in his early days; Johnny "Boss" "Big Jim" successor, was the man held responsible for bringing "Scarface" Al Capone to Chicago from his Brooklyn haunts.

BLAST KILLS 12 WORKERS IN TUNNEL

Camp Mitchell, Cal., July 17 (AP)—A gas explosion killed an entire shift of 12 men in a tunnel of the Hetch Hetchy project, San Francisco's municipal water area, early today.

Engineers said a natural gas pocket probably had been struck in the boring and the gas accidentally ignited.

The tunnel crops straight downward more than 80 feet from the surface and thru trenches into a drift to the east and one to the west. Thirteen men in the west drift, which goes down about 1000 feet, were badly shaken and some were gassed, but all were brought to the surface. None was seriously hurt.

FIND WOMAN, 86 LOST IN WOODS

Brockton, July 17—Lost for several hours in the woods, Mrs. Sarah E. Howard, 86, of Elm st., Hanson, was found by a posse last night two and a half miles from her home.

The aged woman apparently had fallen in a brook or a swamp hole, for her clothing was soaked. She was incoherent when found and could not describe her surroundings.

The hunt, by a posse of more than 100 men, including police and firemen, started when Mrs. Howard failed to return from blueberrying yesterday afternoon.

Dry Agents Kidnaped

Elizabeth, N. J., July 17—Prohibition agents and police are searching for two rum runners who kidnaped two agents during a beer raid, held them for a time and then dumped them from an auto on the outskirts of the town.

Waltham Postoffice

cast when it was announced that the Treasury Department would advertise today for bids for the site of a centrally located site for the structure.

Woman's Life's Savings Lost in 'Investment' in Stocks

The sale of one more stock had been stopped.

Boston Collier, Inc., of 254 Washington st., manufacturers of a gas heating system, was the latest corporation to have its stock sales halted. It had failed to file satisfactory information as to its activities, the commission announced.

The inquiry into the Holland sales as well as into the general activities of the six brokerage houses, got under way behind closed doors shortly before noon. Asst. Atty.-Gen. Louis H. Sawyer, in charge of the stock sales investigation, questioned the first witness—two women who had purchased stock in the Holland corporation. Brokers who had handled the stock were present with their attorneys. Mr. Sawyer withheld the names of the witnesses and the details of the inquiry. Present also at the hearing was the Boston Police Department.

The first of the woman complainants against certain of the salesmen of the Holland stock was a 56-year-old woman of Nahant. She and her husband had invested their life's savings of $5000 in the stock. When dividends ceased

Are You a Victim?

If you have been victimized by stock swindlers, the Boston Evening American, co-operating with Government, State and County officials, will be glad to advise you what is best to be done. Write to the Boston Evening American Stock Fraud Bureau, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston, giving all the circumstances. Such information will be held confidential.

after one payment of $172 to them in October, 1929, they were forced to move from their home of 30 years and move to a $15-a-month cottage. The husband, who is 62 years old, is a part-time working carpenter.

This elderly woman charged that one of the salesmen had promised that the company would return the purchase price of the stock if she requested. Later, when she sought to redeem $1500 worth of stock, she was informed by letter that there was no market.

Mr. Sawyer also asked Asst. John Stokes to investigate the complaint of Mrs. Elizabeth McGrady of Middleboro (that politicians had been influential in blocking her efforts to prosecute an off stock promoter). The latter was discharged Saturday in Middleboro on a complaint charging him with larceny in the sale of stock. Mr. Sawyer promised the case would be reopened.

Other complaints reaching the Boston Evening American Stock Fraud Bureau showed that residents of Massachusetts had been among those who invested in the Alvin Transportation Company. This stock was bought in New York by agents of Hedges & Company, a New York brokerage, and was sold to the Boston Evening American, an ex-convict, and Gerald T. Fitch, both of whom were recently indicted in New York on charges of using the mails to defraud in the sale of the Alvin stock.

THIP SHEETS PROBED

Through salesmen registered in Massachusetts, the sale was chiefly floated in the Boston district.

An ad to stock sales a passenger-carrying airplane was operated in a time between Boston and New York.

While the attorney-general's office was working on the more recent complaints received by the Boston Evening American, the attorney-general of the department of public utilities continued its inquiry into the methods of the more salesmen and brokers in the Commonwealth. The revocation of the license of Benjamin Friedman, Milk broker, Wednesday, and the order of the sale of the stocks of three corporations was only the latest of a drive on questionable stocks and securities, according to Director John C. Hull of the securities division.

THREE STOCKS BARRED

The corporations ordered to stop further sales in Massachusetts were the Ace Mining Co., with central offices at 415 Lexington ave., New York City; The National Aircraft Materials Corp. of New York, and the Alder Manufacturing Co. of Campbell.

Action against the sale of stock in two other corporations was expected late today.

At the Boston Evening American Stock Fraud Bureau, men and women representing various stations in life continued to ask aid and advice in proceeding against crooked stock promoters or in recovering part of the money they had invested.

One officer of the United States Navy told how he had been "fleece" of $2000 through a former broker who had been indicted and had evidently joined up with a crowd of "bull" sales promoters, after leaving the service, induced the officer to put his money in a "bullet" oil scheme. A Greek boot black disclosed a promotion through which a fellow countryman was taking sums ranging from $5 to $100 from the Greek colony in Boston.

FAKE THEATER STOCK

Fly-by-night theatrical promotion schemers have also apparently been exceedingly busy in the Bay State. From women as well as men they collected thousands of dollars by picturing huge profits to be made with the advent of talking pictures. In each case the promoter was "buying up a class" of theaters in New England. When the demand for dividends came, the promoters bowed out and proved unknown among legitimate theater magnates.

Several complaints continue to come in against sales methods used by salesmen of stocks in the Page & Shaw Company, candy manufacturers. These are also being turned over to the State authorities.

Several of the investors in the stock of another company declared they had been given Page & Shaw stock when they complained the first stock had been misrepresented.

Newburyport, July 17.—The body of James F. Sheehan, 26, of Salem, a sailor, who mysteriously disappeared from the U. S. S. Cincinnati on July 3 while that light cruiser was at anchor off his home city for the territorial celebration, was found last night in the Merrimack river here.

CONGRESS WILL BE UPSET BY NEW CENSUS

Washington, July 17 (AP)—A probable upset of congressional representation calculations was indicated today as a result of the 1930 state census enumerations thus far completed.

While it cannot be determined exactly which states will lose congressmen and which will gain, an Associated Press compilation shows sufficient states have completed their population enumerations to give some indication of the probable changes.

When Congress passed its reapportionment act it was calculated the new census would change 23 memberships. Based on the estimated population of the states as of Jan. 1, 1930, it was estimated officially that 17 states would lose a total of 23 House members which would be apportioned to 11 states gaining in population.

CALIFORNIA BIG GAINER

Some states which were not figured among the probable losers are now indicated to have lost. Final calculations may find Illinois, Wisconsin, Arkansas, Rhode Island and Minnesota losing one representative each.

California's actual population had exceeded by almost a million the official estimate used in calculating that state would gain six new members. California's larger increase in population may entitle her to nine new members.

New York had a gain which has brought her total population almost a million higher than the estimate of January 1. Instead of a loss of one, it now seems probable New York will gain an additional member.

DAY STATE TO LOSE

Ohio, it was estimated, would gain three new members, but may gain only one.

Connecticut, Florida and North Carolina seem assured by their new population of securing an additional member of Congress as predicted, but Washington must come within the required number for a new congressman.

The preliminary census statistics bear out predictions of losses in Indiana, Ohio (two each), and Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Massachusetts, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, Tennessee and Vermont (one each).

In Old Boston—No. 310

Massachusetts Tercentenary, 1930

YOU HAVE TO BE 60 years old or more to really remember the old time serenades paid for by love sick Bostonians to their ladies fair. At the time of this picture, some 80 years ago, the Germania Band, a famous organization of the day, was giving a night's serenade outside the West End residence of one of our well known families. You had to have real cash in those days to pay for this, despite the fact that bandman's fees were considerably less than those of today.

Robbers Torture Man for Diamonds

Chicago, July 17 (UPI)—Three robbers tortured William A. Decker with pins yesterday in an effort to force him to reveal the hiding place of his diamonds.

The robbers who attacked Decker invaded his apartment and when he declared he had no diamonds, they bound him to a chair, refusing to believe him, and pricked his bare feet deeply with pins trying to compel him to reveal where he had the gems concealed.

Ponder came from Colt, Ark., and Martin came from Barlow, O. A series of puffs found that the plane had smashed on a hill side. The men were making a daily aerological flight.

FINAL PLANS FOR QUINCY AIR MEET

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

Final arrangements for the revival of the 1918 Squantum air meet, scheduled for Saturday and Sunday at Denison Airport, are entering the last stages, according to Harland F. Banks, manager of the show.

The eastern part of the country has been secured for an old time airplane, the type flown at the first air meet in the United States, and Banks finally located the greater majority of the parts of an old Wright "pusher."

While the plane is not complete, sufficient pieces of it have been found in an old dump near Harland Bushnell, to make the display interesting. A large group of pictures will be included in the special display of this ancient plane, lending the necessary touch to make the exhibit authentic.

All the side streets in the vicinity of Denison Airport have been declared available for parking by Mayor Thomas J. Magrath, which will permit the handling of the hundreds of automobiles.

Recent entries to the list of events include Al Anderson, Coastal Air Transport pilot, who will fly Dr. G. L. Gately's Great Lakes sportplane, Mrs. W. Bartlett Bacon of Brookline, who has entered her Stearns biplane in the Boston Light race, as well as the other events, and Mrs. Theodore "Teddy" Kenyon, also of Brookline, who will fly her Arrow Sportplane.

Three Aerona planes, piloted by the little ships which have swept the country by storm, will participate in the meet. Two of the single-seater monoplanes, which burn two gallons of gasoline an hour, will be flown up from Providence by Reggie Schuler and another pilot of Providence Air Transport, and the third will be brought down from Springfield by Roscoe Barton of Britton-Bayles Flying School.

The three little ships furnish amusement as well as thrills, and will put on a special show on both afternoons.

TELLSHOWREDS INTIMIDATE WORKERS

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

New York, July 17 (AP)—Tactics imputed to Communist leaders in conducting strikes, intimidating workers and destroying property of the employers were described to the special House Communist investigating committee today by Inspector John A. Lyons, in command of the New York city police radical bureau.

During the past four years, he said, Communist leaders had fomented numerous strikes among the shoe, fur, needle, iron, marine transport and dental laboratory workers, as well as suit makers, window cleaners and musicians.

The Communists, he said, used mass picketing and surrounded shops to coerce and intimidate workers into joining the Communist unions. Mobs armed with swords off pool cues invaded the shops, he said, and attacked the workers, destroyed machinery and merchandise.

During one strike last year, he said, steel bombs were thrown in cafeterias and many windows were smashed and the loss in material, he said, reached hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The police inspector told stories of sabotage and declared many old manufacturers had been forced out of business through Communist activities. Most of the Communist strikes leaders, he said, had long criminal records.

Under the New York state laws, Lyons said, it has been difficult for the police to obtain convictions by juries which did not realize that a program of organized violence was being carried out by Communist leaders.

Inspector Lyons said Fred Biedenkopf, a German associated with Alfred Wagnerschnitz, had been leading the Communist strike in New York during the last few years. In his work, he said, he had found Moscow dominated the American Communist party.

"Brought Back My Strength"

"My little daughter was born on a homestead in northern Alberta. I had four other children and I worked so hard that I suffered a nervous breakdown. The doctor's tonic did not seem to help me and when a friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I began to take that instead. I kept on until I felt well again. It brought back my strength. Today I can do anything, thanks to the Vegetable Compound."

MUSIC TALENT PROGRAM FOR CLUB WOMEN

By NANCY BREWSTER

The "Music Talent Fund" plan of the Kansas Federation of Women's Clubs has been urged upon all the State Federations of the country by the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the parent organization of 2,500,000 clubwomen.

The objectives of the plan are: To make a state-wide quest for outstanding musical talent among children.

To cooperate with music through district presidents and district music talent fund chairmen in the search for outstanding musical talent among advanced students.

To consult with parents of students regarding accredited or suitable music teachers and suitable instruments.

To provide opportunities for favorable public appearances.

Mrs. Mina del Castillo, music chairman of the General Federation and prominent Cambridge clubwoman, has urged some of these principles upon the clubwomen of the Commonwealth. The remaining objectives will be carried out in the fall program of Mrs. Amy Young Burns, music chairman of the Massachusetts State Federation.

The General Federation recorded itself unalterably opposed to the elimination of "living music" from homes and theaters and to the successful completion of such a movement, every clubwoman is asked to lend her support.

The music department of Bay State clubwomen is one of its most important.

Mrs. Sippel Makes Special Plea for Greater Tolerance

A special plea for greater kindness and greater tolerance among clubwomen in their dealings with each other is made by Mrs. John P. Sippel, president of the General Federation.

Personal jealousies, petty ambitions and unkind criticisms are unworthy of the splendid thinking women who make up the great organization, she points out.

Mrs. Sippel states further, in an article in the General Federation News, the official parent organization organ.

"In the light of the great privileges and rare opportunities that are ours, let us none of us ourselves and those with whom we associate, from bitterness and sharp passions of unguarded moments."

"Let us adhere to that old Chinese proverb which says, 'He who is evil, let him speak no evil.' Then I would go a step further. I wish that we might be governed in the conduct of our clubs and in our association with each other by the same rule as the greatest rule for human conduct ever penned, the Golden Rule. For then and only then can we attain true nobility of character."

"This then is the charge of individual responsibility that the General Federation feels its clubwomen for effective club service to the community measured by increased power, and ensuring human needs, for without the best that is in each of us we may not bring to fulfillment."

Association Sets 15,000 as Goal of Membership Drive

Fifteen thousand members is the new goal of the Hebrew Ladies' Home for the Aged Association, which now numbers 10,000 Greater Boston women on its roster.

The Queen at Dorchester institution which is operated at an approximate annual cost of $100,000 is supported and maintained by the dues of the association plus the donor gifts and the memorializing charges for the various bronze tablets that adorn the walls of what has been termed the finest Jewish Home for the Aged in the state.

Mrs. Bertha Greenblatt, first president of the association, has given 24 years of service to the institution, serving it in many capacities and responsible for most of its many members. Mark W. Cohen heads the administration.

Founded about 25 years ago by a handful of public spirited women, the institution has grown and grown until today it houses in its attractive home-like surroundings 240 men and women 60 years of age and over.

The directors' room was in those first days the synagogue. Immigrants could continue their traditional worship of their faith. To day a temple of worship, and is comparable to any fine temple in the city.

Other officers include Mrs. P. Perlman, second vice-president; Mrs. Fannie R. Thibault, secretary; Mrs. Sadie Solomon, treasurer; Mrs. S. Karmov, treasurer; Morris C. Gilman, superintendent.

Noted Pilot Dies in Outside Loop

Massachusetts Heights, N. J., July 17 (U.S.)—Roy Ahearn, daring aviator, who accepted the view that a stunt flier had a short-term lease on life, was killed yesterday when the wings of his monoplane collapsed as he sought to execute the dangerous outside loop.

Apparently he was unable to get out of the cockpit to use the parachute he wore, due to the terrific speed with which the wingless fuselage, with motor roaring, hurtled to earth. Ahearn dove 4000 feet into the meadows beside Wilbur's grave, between Massachussetts and Little Ferry.

Trix Phones Smithy for Money

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE
One convoy of wounded after another is the lot of the women's ambulance corps of which Helen Smith is a member. Her husband, Tom, has been christened "Mrs. Helen" in a hard-fought, strenuous work, little sleep and poor food show on the girls. When Smith's mother writes during her ally's war, "Smithy" pictures the war-ravaged men, "Mrs. Helen" questions the girls regarding Tom's and Helen's argument, which led to a fight. Helen is sent home. Girls visit German prisoners and are shocked at their language. Smithy, tired of the horrors of war, goes home and antagonizes her relatives by her actions.

CHAPTER 31

We deliberate with mock gravity the important point, then Roy says we must consider the garden.

"For what cottage garden is ever complete without a preambulator on the lawn?" he demands. "But," he adds, "into the kitchen garden he goes quick if he yells."
"He? You mean she," I argue.
We compromise on one of each. Oh, the fun and peace and cleanness of the life we plan after the war, Roy and I. Oh, the sweetness of the playmate I have surprisingly found I love. Happy, happy, taxi ride that ends in finding ourselves at father's doorstep before we realize we have left central London behind.

Both Happy Confess Their Love

The scent of the flowers floods our nostrils, the rays of the summer moon bathe us in gold. So they should, we think on this night of nights, what are scents of flowers and golden moons for if not the exclusive use of lovers? It is a golden evening, this dourstare farewell, our first.

We cannot tear ourselves apart. At least the romance apart on a note of farce. For comes to the door. It is long after midnight and time all decent people were in bed, he says tersely.

"Just like a comic paper," whistles Roy, in a mischievous talk about the gas bill and introduce me to the top of his book.

We go into fits of laughter, to father's annoyance. Am I or am I not coming in? I ask. "What would happen if I refused?"

"Good night," says Roy formally. "I'll telephone you to let you know that matter we were discussing in the morning."

"Yes," I reply, "good night."

He hangs the door, puts up the chain—no runner. He is in the mirror in flushed, happy, laughing.

How lovely life has become after all! I wonder how he will be. "Good, I'm happy, I'm happy!" For the first time my ghostly procession does not parade in the early hours before the dawn.

Trix Calls To Borrow $100

"You're wanted on the phone, Miss Nellie," I call up with a jerk. Eight o'clock. Who on earth is indecent enough to telephone at this ungodly hour? Not Roy—Roy went to France last night. I refuse to think of Roy and France. Eyes half-closed, I stumble out of bed, downstairs—why can't he be in a decent place? Phone put in a decent place.

"Hello!"
"Hi, Miss Helen Smith speaking." A woman's voice, husky and unknown to me.
"Yes, speaking."
"Prepare for a shock and don't use my name at the other end, Roy!"
"Yes, I'm listening."
"Hi, Trix speaking. Quiet now, I'm in England and I don't want the family to know, got that?"
"Hi, Trix in England."
"Yes."
"What something awful has happened. I must see you at once—will you take the address—I'll wait in all the morning for you. You won't fail you?"
"Fail you, Trix. Fail you, the little sister I love!"
"Tell me the address and I'll come."
"I'll be there in an hour or two."
"I can't go out till you come." She cuts off abruptly. Trix's house on leave. Trix hangs

AGREEMENT SETS SUM AT $40

Payments to Continue Until Divorce Suit Against Arlington Lumberman is Heard

Mrs. Florence S. Vail of Arlington, whose suit against her husband, George M. Vail, for separate support is pending in Middlesex probate court, was today awarded $40 a week alimony pending the hearing of the suit by Judge John C. Leggat.

After 27 years of married life Mrs. Vail has filed suit against her husband, 61, wealthy Arlington lumberman, for separate support growing out of another suit pending in which she seeks $20,000 from Mrs. Mildred S. Behnke, attractive widow of Onet, for alienation of affection. Both cases are due to be heard this fall.

ASKS ALLOWANCE

Today Mrs. Vail's attorney, Jesse D. Crook, appeared in court with a motion for allowance pending hearing of the case.

Following an agreement between attorneys, Judge Leggat allowed the alimony without argument. The court ordered Vail to not only pay Mrs. Vail $40 a week beginning July 1 but to also pay the gas, electric light, telephone bills and the taxes and payments with interest due on the mortgage on their home at 28 Walnut st.

Arlington was stirred a week ago when Mrs. Vail brought sensational charges in the course of Middlesex and Plymouth counties restraining her husband from entering their home or transferring any of the stock of his lumber company, the Vail Bros.-Mauger Corp.

NAMES OTHER WOMAN

At the same time she brought suit for separate maintenance, charging that her husband was "squandering large sums of money on the other woman," named as Mrs. Mildred Behnke, holder of large real estate interests at Onset. This suit will be tried in September.

The separate maintenance action is returnable in Middlesex probate court, East Cambridge, on August 21. Mrs. Vail is at present at her summer cottage at Falmouth, a few miles from the home of a daughter of Mrs. Behnke, where the latter is spending the summer.

UNDERNOURISHED CHILDREN 'SOAK UP' HEALTH FROM SUNLIGHT

THE MORNING MILK. Here are some of the children at the Essex County Health

AFTERNOON SUN BATH. Oh yes, they do have morning sun periods, as well. Miss Dexter is reading to the boys and girls, as they enjoy the sun and get health from its rays.

MANY PRAY AT POWER GRAVE

Crowds continued to visit Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden, today to kneel at the grave of Rev. Fr. Patrick J. Power and pray for succor from ill.

Several supplicants were on hand among them a party from Pennsylvania containing a crippled little girl.

While the party knelt at the grave the adults burst into tears then took the child into the chapel for more prayers, after which they hurried away in the automobile.

Milk Plus Sunlight Equals Health

Stand here with me and watch a child grow.

A figure of speech, of course, and yet—

In two months of last summer the average child gained between six and seven pounds, and one gained 17, at the Essex County Health Camp at Middleton, sponsored by the Essex County Health Association, affiliated with the Massachusetts Tuberculosis League.

It has 30 girls and 30 boys from the ages of six to 12. They are undernourished youngsters—undernourished both from within and without. They are the kind of weakened bodies that the tuberculosis germ comes to dwell in.

DAILY PROGRAM

But along about Sept. 1, old T. B. will get a rough reception from these youngsters. Sun, fresh air, gallons and gallons of milk, good wholesome food in plenty and the right kind of exercise will have transformed these incipient invalids into sturdy young children prepared to battle and defeat not only tuberculosis germs but all the other microbes that go hunting after girls and boys.

There are four sleeping bungalows on the grounds. There is a main dining hall and recreation building, and an excellently equipped infirmary. There are shower houses for both the boys and girls.

At 7.30 every morning this crowd of whooping juveniles is out of bed for the morning wash, setting up drill and a breakfast. Then sun bath, handcraft, woodcraft, campcraft, archery, baseball—whatever is on the day's program—laid out by Miss Rae Kauffer, of Beverly, program director.

Then lunch and a two-hour siesta. Milk and more milk, and sandwiches. More sun and more exercises. Supper. And bed. Bed at 8.20 every night. Lights out and deep, untroubled sleep.

NO PAYMENT

The children receive two months' board and care without charge. They are gathered from about 30 cities and towns in Essex County, Salem and Lawrence, which have their own camps, are accepted.

Right now there isn't any swimming pool at the camp. The children need one badly for next year. It will depend upon the generosity and the appreciation of the public.

Miss Clara Cooke, of Beverly, is director of the camp. Miss Helen Walsh is the camp nurse and dietitian. Mrs. Charles J. Hall cooks the day's things to eat.

BLIMP DELAYS AUTO INJURES QUINCY TRIP CYCLE OFFICER

Adverse winds caused postponement of the scheduled trip of the Neponset, 138-foot dirigible, to the Danvers airport today. Hundreds of "air-minded" persons who had waited two hours for its arrival left the airport disappointed when an attendant announced it would not arrive until tomorrow.

Commodore Samuel H. Shepard, pilot of the ship, telephoned from Fairhaven, where it had been left, to notify the Quincy Chamber of Commerce members who were due for a flight in the craft that he was sorry, but wouldn't risk the trip. He said it was permitted he would get their tomorrow.

WHAT A CHEER goes up when it's mail time at the camp. Here we have Miss Sally Dexter, councillor, aided by one of her charges, bringing in the mail.

RAID 'LONG BAR' IN NANTASKET

A breezy atmosphere of pre-prohibition days confronted federal agents when they raided Grand View Hotel, Nantasket ave., Nantasket, last night. It was charged in U. S. court today.

Field Prohibition Agent Dennis Lenden said he and assistants found a long mahogany bar with brass rail, mirrors and decorative bottles in full operation.

The bar ran the entire length of the first floor and was well patronized, he testified.

"It was undoubtedly the biggest bar room in Nantasket," said Lenden. "From the front porch of the hotel the bar was clearly visible. We seized several cases of Canadian ale and a quantity of bottled goods. The place was raided two years ago, but there was no suspicion that business had been resumed."

George A. Neal, manager, charged with possession of liquor and maintaining a common nuisance, pleaded not guilty before U. S. Commissioner Goodale and was held in $1000 for a hearing Saturday.

Mrs. Hoover Entertains Veterans

First Lady Is Hostess at Party on South Grounds of White House

Washington, July 17 (US)—For the first time in more than three months Mrs. Herbert Hoover appeared at a public White House function yesterday. Apparently fully recovered from the effects of a stomach ailment suffered in slipping upon a rug, the First Lady presided at the annual garden party for injured veterans of the World War.

Smiling and gracious, Mrs. Hoover greeted some 800 maimed doughboys who are still making the good fight at Walter Reed Hospital here. Some able to walk hobbled past in wheelchairs, others who were disabled or who lost their right arm. The guests were favored by Mrs. Hoover's cordial and encouraging words.

The south grounds of the executive mansion presented a colorful picture, gaily decorated in the national colors. Refreshment stands were set up, from which were served hundreds of quarts of ice cream and thousands of sandwiches. Familiar war time airs were played by the famous Marine band.

Assuming Mrs. Hoover in receiving were several ladies of the cabinet, including Mrs. Sumner, Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Hurley. The White House guests, Mrs. Hindle and Miss Hindle, also were present. Mrs. Hindle is an old college chum of the President at Stanford University.

In the recent visit of President Hoover made an effort to be present at one of the state functions and afforded a release in consequence. Her demeanor and enthusiasm yesterday showed she had completely recovered from any effects of her illness.

Sheer Dark Color Cool and Smart

By ANN ARDEN

A NEW thought assumes the background of summer colors—something to add spice to one's summer set of clothes. That's why smart women are choosing, this year, sheer dresses in new tones of brown, dark green and maroon red. For luncheon, tea, luncheon, these fabrics are as cool as ice cream. And since one can wear them later in the fall, and winter, too, they're an investment in chic, as well as an adventure.

EVERY WELL-dressed woman begins to think about something new, and with a hint of fall about the time, the charming frock pictured should answer so many requirements in addition to its assurance of chic.

IT IS of chiffon in the very finest mesh, flowered in yellow, orange, heena, and a touch of blue. The skirt is elegantly plain and the lower edge scalloped. The V neckline is edged in a tiny roll collar, the shoulder cape, deeper in back, is bordered with a row of flower-leaf design of the material. The wide band of the skirt is made of bands of brown velvet ribbon up to the top edge and at base of the skirt.

RIDGE PUMPS are worn trimmed in brown; a handkerchief of beige chiffon and lace is carried and a bag embroidered in tones of the gown.

YOU MAY have wondered whether there could be another way of bordering any garment after seeing the fringed and notched edges of some of the summer ensembles. We have discovered what we believe to be a unique border. It is formed by a cutout of the print of the frock which is decorated with graceful feather figures that resemble a plume. Not only do the cutouts of the pattern form the border of the frock's skirt, but they are used to define the pattern of the frock, giving the gown a feathered, edgy look.

THE QUESTION of whether or not prints would continue to be popular after their taste of the summer is at least partially answered by the appearance of clever tailored prints for fall. Small designs in white and colors appear on canton crepe. The patterns include the popular dot in new versions, and small plaids are to be found.

New Maid Sent by Alphonse Arrives, But Raquel Does Not Like Her

CHAPTER 43

It was some time after midnight when Raquel hurried along the corridor giving out the court of the Continental Hotel and entered the elevator, occupied by a drowsy operator. He blinked at her as if she were an apparition in the dream she had no doubt disturbed.

Her first night in Paris! Oh, joyous, thrilling! Were it not for the stupor, the unparalleled enervation of Alphonse, she would have been so much joy, and to have it spoiled by a silly, jealous man.

Had the evening brought the end of her ambitions? Alphonse withdrew heavily from her? If he had, she'd seek it elsewhere. Surely she would find it again. Beauty was all over the earth if one had the courage to claim it.

At any rate, Alphonse knew that she was not to leave without his consent. He would follow her to the end of the world. That she believed was the only way to know tomorrow whether he would accept her on her own terms.

She closed the door between her bedroom and the bathroom and went to shut off a draft that was blowing her hair. When she awoke in the morning the door was open. It had been stronger than the latch.

Door Opened

Raquel Suspects Draft

"I hope I haven't caught cold," she said. "I'd make my head dull and tired. I used my wits about me today. And I think I've done well. I'm listening."

Someone was moving about in the drawing-room. "Who is there?" she called, pulling the covers close under her chin.

The door immediately there appeared in the doorway the figure of a woman. A heavy shadow fell over the face of a man and a long, sharp cry.

"Is she the new maid?" she said. "Monster Alphonse sent her for me. I'm sure she's a little bit of a mischief maker. A smirk."

It was one Raquel. The woman she would like to tell her to go to that service. But she would be needed. No. That would be another affront to Alphonse. Perhaps what Greta said about Raquel putting a stop to live with her had prejudiced.

"What time is it?" she hesitated, not knowing this woman's name.

"Lola. It is after ten, madame."

As late as that? Why hadn't she said so to her? And where was Greta? Greta had promised to stop for her. Lola. With a face like that.

Called Spanish

Raquel Denies It

"I prefer that you address me as miss," she said to the maid.

"You-American?" The sharp nose of the woman poked forward as if she would not let the truth look so close to an absurd assertion. She should take for Spanish-Cuban probably, or Argentinian.

"No," Raquel said as cordially as she could manage. "What right had this maid to do that to me? To 'take' her for anything? She must have her resentment, though. Encourage Lola to think aloud."

"In from the United States," Raquel added. "In fact, I've never been out of my own country before. That is, for any distance."

"You had been across the border, in Mexico. But not far, or for long. And you were very like Hermosa—a continuation, intensified, of Alphonse."

"A Miss Greta called." The woman interrupted her before. "Only a few minutes before you awakened. She said she was on her way to your hotel. I had muffled the bell so it would not disturb you."

"I wish—Raquel was about to flare at the intruder when she saw that Lola would have her hands off the telephone and do anything else. She must not do it. That would make a bad break."

"With you, Lola, to go to the nearest shop and get me a jar of cold cream," she submitted. She wanted to get sharp-angled on the way as she could talk with Greta, formulate some plan of action.

"Madame—there is a jar of cold cream in the dressing-room."

So Lola had already poked her nose through whatever was personal. Yes, but it is not to my liking. I want it quite fresh. You will find change in the box."

"And the bag is—"

Greta came bounding in, joyful as a young puppy.

"Everything's clever," she cried, dashing skirts around to tell you, dearie, I didn't even stop ring the bell."

"You mean Alphonse is not here?"

"He's gone to his room, as if nothing had happened."

"I hope so, but I have my doubts. Alphonse may be only a temporary absence, and it is usually only a temporary absence."

"So soon? Early bird nimbles were you?"

"She was in his room when I woke up."

"Why, the old snail-bug. Does she carry her own baggage?"

"She'd been through everything. I suppose. At least she was not to leave without his consent. He would follow her to the end of the world."

"What is she like?"

"Like a—Raquel. A fat ferret. Raquel Calls Maid."

"Like a—Raquel. A fat ferret. Raquel Calls Maid."

"I know. Like nothing else. What a rascally wren. I'll give her my key on it."

"At the entrance to the hotel, I found her arch, an attendant found Raquel, and Greta, a taxi."

"You would?"

"The broad shoulders were lively with Raquel."

"This is a holiday of some kind," Raquel remarked as she stepped out.

"What make you think so?" asked Greta.

"Every one seems to be so merry. Tripping along as if there were going to be a picnic or a party."

"That's a holiday. That's the nature of the beast. There's just a little bit of a holiday of some kind."

All-Purpose Silk Coats

Directed by AMOS PARRIS

NEW YORK, July 17.—Know that you find in almost every house where the man of the family is the emergency carpenter?

It does all sorts of things. Drills holes. Drives nails. Extracts screws. Changes stubborn window frames or any thing. Just name your job and it does it.

Don't know his real name. But whenever a piece of home manual labor comes his way, the amateur carpenter is sure to call loudly for The Gadget.

A silk coat is to the fashionable 1930 woman what The Gadget is to the home carpenter. Fits most every need. Good for most every purpose.

A silk coat is fine for warm weather city street wear—when you feel you need something other than a wool coat it is too much.

It's a great resort wear—in afternoon or evening—with your informal dress or chiffon dresses. And for vacation travel, it's just what you need. Sheds dust, light and comfortable. And can be packed in a very small space.

These are all reasons why "in" such a universal fashion this summer. Modern women like Gadget.

Just as the wool cape coat was an outstanding spring fashion, so the silk cape coat is the outstanding summer one.

Of course, the fashion is flattering. We've had one of the most popular types sketched—... the one with the cape collar that continues all the way round to the neck.

Another coat that's lovely in silk is the coat with jacket collar. Sometimes the jacket effect is fat, really a flared skirt.

One more fashion is getting looking. It's wide enough to fit in becoming folds.

The silk coat with plain collar, neck and a fine finish to get the look of a dress with a wide collar and jacket collar.

Then you put the skirt or jacket on the coat.

... plus collarless necklines.

Outside the coat. And not only the coat, but the skirt, the jacket, the blouse, the dress, the suit, the ensemble, the whole thing.

... plus collarless necklines.

Woman's Poker Face

WHY does a woman close her eyes when she is being kissed? This question is puzzling a group of male students at an Eastern college. They are studying the psychology of kissing, and they have put it up to me.

They say to answer. A woman closes her eyes when a man kisses her as naturally and instinctively as she closes her eyes when she is being kissed.

She closes her eyes automatically and subconsciously, in order to veil her thoughts and emotions for fear of a hunter.

She is the primordial feminine instinct, nurtured by many generations of old experience.

Half the average woman's life is spent in "closing her eyes" and pretending not to know or see things.

Because she knows that as soon as a man finds out all about her, he will be interested to find out more.

It is she like that who knows that she is being kissed, and she closes her eyes to veil her thoughts and emotions for fear of a hunter.

And she is afraid to let him know that she is being kissed, and she closes her eyes to veil her thoughts and emotions for fear of a hunter.

She conceals the fact that she is being kissed, and she closes her eyes to veil her thoughts and emotions for fear of a hunter.

Before marriage, she closes her eyes to veil her thoughts and emotions for fear of a hunter.

After marriage, she closes her eyes to veil her thoughts and emotions for fear of a hunter.

Punishing Arson

A Contemptible Crime

Mr. John W. Beth, the State Fire Marshal, requests the Boston Evening American to call forcibly to the attention of the public that many of the legal technicalities which surrounded the base crime of arson and which made its perpetrators almost exempt from prosecution have now been cleared away.

The Supreme Court has confirmed the conviction of two men who were not found by direct evidence to have fired their home, to have inspired it or, according to their claim, to have profited overmuch from the insurance. The jury was permitted to draw its reasonable inferences that the men, nevertheless, were accessories to the crime of the unidentified fire.

Newspapermen know from their experiences in reporting the tragic events of the day that arson is one of the most contemptible and dangerous of crimes. It is often committed in the dead of night when its possible victims can be more easily be caught unaware.

Once a fire is started it is in the laps of the gods and subject to the whims of the elements. It obeys no rules; it defies them all. From an inconspicuous beginning it can spread suddenly into a holocaust, collecting with abandon the lives and property which would be safe from the ordinary tragedies.

We want to see no man stripped of his legal and natural defenses. Liberty and reputation are too precious to be swept away by the passions of self-righteous reformers which today demand their vengeful summary laws. But the law-abiding people will share with Beth the satisfaction that their safety is made the more secure by the new rules which deprive the vandal of the protection to which he was not entitled.

Automobile Killers

We Fight for Personal Liberty, but Imperil Our Neighbors

The lives of men, women and children are being destroyed on our highways with a prodigality that indicates we have gone auto crazy.

The national death toll will mount to 40,000 this year. It is a casualty list which would shock us even in war time. Our own State sees a thousand human beings killed annually. Now, if there is one type of hazard which can be eliminated by carelessness and by consideration of the rights of others it is the usual auto accident.

Boozing liquor is not the concomitant of safety. When a man puts his hand to the wheel he should not give vent to any spirit of headless adventure. The life of himself is in his hands. If he has no regard for it, he has at least a responsibility for the lives of others.

All our wallings and sorrowings do not bring back the life that is gone. One drop of prudence would have been better than a river of tears.

We rail at the laws which violate our personal liberty and then, by our own willfulness, imperil the personal safety of our innocent neighbor.

Rates and Ownership

New Hampshire Continues Investigation

Chairman Maynard H. Morse of the New Hampshire Public Service Commission is to be commended for the decision to continue the investigation of the financial structure of the foreign association which has been steadily acquiring ownership of the public utilities in that State.

The public should know fully the identity of those who undertake to supply their needs. Also, the financial interiors of these holding corporations must be examined closely if the public are to have a fair basis for the rates of service imposed upon them.

Public Service Commissions have defaulted altogether on too many of their rights and duties.

They have sat complacently by while their powers were being snapped away from them.

Morse's decision opens the way for them to regain some of the lost confidence in them.

Feeling for Others

Mayor Bates' Gracious Act

Mayor Bates of Salem exhibited true gentility in the affliction caused by the accidental death of his young daughter. When asked by someone for the identity of the youthful playmate who participated in the sad event, the Mayor replied without hesitation: "It was an accident; why plunge two families into grief?"

The stress of grief usually causes one to display the strength or weakness of character. If we all exhibited such care concern for the tender feelings of others life would lose some of its ugly accompaniments.

McINTYRE ABROAD

By O. O. McIntyre

PARIS, JULY 17 — I always say au revoir to Paris with a gulp despite that in these post-bellum days the city has taken on the qualities of a beautiful but urticaceous plant — nettled with stinging thorns. The Paris of exquisites, galleries and gushing hospitality — so far as Americans are concerned — has almost vanished.

I speak of Paris alone and not France as a nation. In the provinces the simple and obliging charm that characterizes the French is unchanged. Largely, and in justice to Paris, it is our own fault. We have been suckers and are paying the price and reaping the whirlwind the sucker sows wherever he goes.

The quality of prices, aimed almost solely at Americans, for the British will not stand the gaff, in the big dressmaking establishments as well as almost every other shop in the city, offers the most impudent jack-knifing ever devised. Coupled with this is the thriving congerie system in American patronized hotels.

We who are visiting France are not so dull as we are not perfectly conscious France has its majority who assay high in integrity and culture. But most of us have reached a point where we would like to meet some of them instead of the rapacious rascals that trade men and hotel keepers fling in our teeth.

Multiply this personal incident of the morning by a full score daily and you have a fair idea. A suit of clothes was to be delivered to my hotel room. At 20 minutes intervals three door-pounding waiters — one with vest, another with coat and still another with pantaloons — upset the household, merely to get three tips instead of one.

If this trifling incident were not a part of the studied organized petty banditry it would not be mentioned here. But it is. No Frenchman would suffer it, and the most hopeful sign is that Americans are not going to suffer it much longer is that Paris shops have not been so idle or hotels so desolated in many years.

Paris, of all the continental cities, is almost wholly dependent upon tourists for its financial well being. France as a whole can get along without us, but Paris cannot.

Another thing — I'm pretty mad today — I'm fed up reading in the continental press about the left Dore sister, or maybe it is the one on the right. Anyway it is the one who is always headlined as having "a winning streak" at the gaming tables of Le Tourquet or Monte Carlo. At best the Dore sisters are a pair of mediocre and outmoded dancers out of the New York Ghetto, and are no more representative of American womanhood abroad than the pain-tormenting servants of Paris are representative of the good people of France.

I know a cultured man and his equally cultured wife who have saved for 15 years to spend a year studying the artistic beauty and architectural triumphs of France. They live frugally in a skylit flat of an old pension along the quay. Each morning they attend the free classes of the Sorbonne, and in five months speak the language without accent of accent. At the end of the year their finances will be exhausted and they are going back to a little Louisiana town to begin all over again. Each is past 40. That interests me more somehow than the over-publicized Dore sisters cracking the bank at Monte Carlo. But such stories are never printed over here.

The Parisian blood fares forth on the lucky boulevard with a new sartorial conceit these days. His shirt, collar, handkerchief and bow tie are of the same material. His clothing material is of veridical striped patterns and his lapel flower in a huge red or white rose.

His hat is pulled well down on the head but not at an angle. His shoes are very pointed, patent leather with cloth uppers.

It is quite childish, I suppose, to leave Paris in a pout, for of all cities over here I love and admire it most. Yet it seems to me something should be done to save it from itself. I am fully determined that I am never coming to Paris again — that is to say, not again this summer.

H. G. Wells Writes ON "THE SCIENCE OF LIFE"

IT HAS been shown, by an elaborate process of experiment and reasoning that these 460 and more genes are crowded in a chain along the chromosomes. They are not strung together anywhere, as some have arranged along the chromosomes in a definite order.

The reduction division of the germ cells of Drosophila from which the genes has been watched and recorded in great detail. As we know, already the chromosomes then come together in pairs instead of splitting.

Now the pairs that so unite are always the corresponding pairs. The description of cell division in Chapter 3 may seem marvellous enough, but we did not go on then into the full intricacy of this delicate process.

In this fruit-fly the two little bobby chromosomes pair, the two always the corresponding pairs. The description of cell division in Chapter 3 may seem marvellous enough, but we did not go on then into the full intricacy of this delicate process.

At the reduction division each daughter-cell gets one member of each pair and thus it is insured that each of the resulting gametes shall get one complete outfit.

What is pulled well down on the head but not at an angle. His shoes are very pointed, patent leather with cloth uppers.

It is quite childish, I suppose, to leave Paris in a pout, for of all cities over here I love and admire it most. Yet it seems to me something should be done to save it from itself. I am fully determined that I am never coming to Paris again — that is to say, not again this summer.

The same is true of the chromosomes of many other creatures. Moreover, the chromosomes during the pairing process lie in very accurate, levelled opposition, even the individual corresponding genes, of the members of a pair being opposed to each other.

And sometimes they twist a little round each other, like Hershey's snakes, while they are writhing in the nucleus in the early stages of the reduction division.

Even the minutest details of these microscopic juxtapositions are accurately reflected in the subsequent inheritance. In the case of the fruit fly, genes are placed in the chromosomes they will tend to be handed on together from generation to generation.

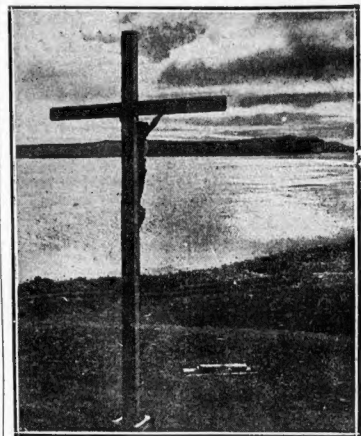

The units which are hand-d and dealt out on the spindle of a dividing cell are chromosomes, not genes. The genes go in bundles. In the case of the fruit fly, low-seeded and short green-seeded peas, the height gene and the round-seeded gene are in different chromosomes.

If they were in the same chromosomes we should expect the original pairs with which we started to reappear in the second cross-bred generation, and that the tall plants with green seeds and the dwarf plants with yellow seeds would not appear.

In the Far Antarctic

Frenchmen Erect a Proof of Faith and Gratitude

IMPRESSIVE SCENE IN A COLD, FAR-OFF LAND

A party of French scientists, exploring and recording observations near the South Pole, erected this monument, a figure of Christ upon the cross, on the bleak shore of Port Jeanne d'Arc, on Kerguelen Island.

The scientists have returned to France, taking with them their records and adding them to the knowledge of human beings. This shore, far away in the cold Antarctic, is deserted. The sun shines feebly, as it sets, and the carved image of the Saviour looks out toward the west.

Devout men and women, and many lacking definite and positive faith, will look upon this picture with interest and reverend.

For more than nineteen hundred years Christ's example and sacrifice have lighted the world, comforted dark places, protected poor women and children, checked cruelty, and held out hope hereafter to millions.

The French scientists, erecting this cross in the Antarctic, left a reminder of mercy and kindness there when they came away that will comfort and cheer those visiting that barren shore hereafter.

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Why Are Impulsive People Unpopular?

IMPULSIVE PEOPLE are usually unpopular and they never can understand why.

There's Bill, for example. When you come into town, a stranger, he is the first hand to shake yours. And it's a strong, generous hand. There's nothing in the world for you. Want to know how he does it? Like a cat for a spin in the country? Need a list of the best stores? Bill's right on. Elsie Robinson you out. You haven't known him an hour, before you feel like old friends. And you're presently unsmiling and indignant at the odd little smile that greets you when you mention your new friend Bill.

Dear Good Old Bill—he's a Prince of a Fellow! Why in heck don't they appreciate him?

In a burst of sympathy, you tell him all he has suffered and how they've hardly a person he can count on—really count on—in spite of all he's done for folks. Why do they act this way? Search him! He hasn't an idea. But he guesses it's just human nature to be ungrateful.

But after a while it begins to dawn on you why folks smile when Bill's name is mentioned. For you've got to admit yourself that Bill is acting mighty ungrateful. There was that deal he offered to help you on—but you haven't heard a word from him since. And that car he was going to loan you? Where's that car? Still in Bill's garage. And where's Bill? Well, to tell the truth, Bill hasn't been taken up with that new chap Smith—too busy greeting Smith, in his big warm-hearted way, to bother with you any more. And so, presently you find yourself smiling oddly when Bill's name is mentioned. Great fellow, Bill—but too impulsive. Means well, no doubt, but somehow you can't depend on him.

Recognize Bill, don't you? You've known scores of Bills—and you female Bills. Greatest people on earth—so generous they'd give you the shirts off their backs—and yet they never seem to have any lasting friends. Queer, isn't it?

No, not queer at all. For impulsive people are really dangerous people and, even though we can't analyze the cause, we soon learn to avoid them.

It's so easy to be impulsive—and so delightful. We like to make large promises, and perform spectacular acts of generosity. It makes us feel gorgeously important. We bask in the admiration and gratitude of those we help. But, unlike we harness our impulses and shape them into a definite, controlled policy, we become little better than disorderly animals.

For impulse is animal. It began long before man did. Watch impulse working in a monkey's jabbering jerks—in your puppy's wagging tail or drooping ears. HUMAN SPIRITS WAG AND DROOP IN EXACTLY THE SAME WAY. AND FOR EXACTLY THE SAME REASON. They are the product of emotion—of dumb, unreasoning flesh. And unless a man rules his impulses with his brain, they become as tricky and dangerous as the impulses in a brute.

That's why we can't trust the impulsive person. He sounds like a man. He looks like a man. But there may be no real manliness behind his promises. There may only be the restless vanity and amiability of a monkey or a puppy. And you can't build on that.
